

A script from

“Best Part of Mother’s Day”

by Eddie James

- What A mom and dad go over the events of the day, which is Mother’s Day, and realize that sometimes the best moments are the ones that can’t be made. (Themes: moms, children, parenting)
- Who Mom, Dad
- When Present; Mother’s Day
- Wear (Props) couch
- Why Isaiah 66:13
- How This is a very easy-going skit, so play it relaxed and thoughtful. Make the dialogue very natural, but keep the pace going.
- Time Approximately 3 minutes

Dad is sitting on the couch as Mom enters.

- Dad: Kids asleep?
- Mom: Yep. The storm has kind of kept them from nodding off quickly. (walking into living room setting or Dad: on a couch.)
- Dad: So...sit...sit. What was the best part of Mother's Day?
- Mom: What do you mean?
- Dad: The kids and I - we were pretty creative.
- Mom: You were. You truly were.
- Dad: So...was it the breakfast in bed?
- Mom: That was great. I love Cheerios™ and toast.
- Dad: They did it themselves. I love how Dillon got the toast burnt on one side and the other side- which you saw- looked toasted to perfection.
- Mom: It's definitely a skill he possesses. Don't know how that will play out, but definitely a skill. That was great. Thanks honey.
- Dad: So, it wasn't the breakfast in bed. (thinking) Okay, was it the flower the kids gave to you for church?
- Mom: Loved the flower. (remembering and quietly laughing) Lindsey even had to blow her nose in church service this morning and she took the Kleenex™ and made that into a flower and said there was pollen in it.
- Dad: Yeah...I taught her that. Most moms don't get a flower for church much less two.
- Mom: I'm blessed.
- Dad: Okay...not the breakfast, not the flower. Was it going to get your favorite ice cream? The kids loved that part.
- Mom: That was sweet. At some point my favorite ice cream has become the kids' favorite ice cream. Which they ended up eating half of my scoop.
- Dad: Like I said- they loved getting ice cream.
- Mom: All of those were great little moments, which make me very thankful. You know what my favorite part of the day was?
- Dad: Tell me.